

The Witch's Fleet

What better time to learn about The Witch's Fleet than on Halloween weekend?! Join us for a book signing event where you can meet the author, John Corrigan, co-author, Abby Weech, illustrator, Alexandria Tackett, and cover photographer/GGG artist, Patti Larson.

At this event, you can learn more about the book and get a signed copy. Patti will have artwork on display and there will be refreshments and treats available.

As described by author John Corrigan:

"This new novel's mission is to take you back in time and experience an actual dramatic adventure. In researching the historic occurrences that transpired along the shores of Lake Erie in 1812-13, I discovered a number of instances of bizarre coincidences. These include; the appearance of a mysterious plague and its sudden abatement at just the right moment, the curious appearance of two ships found stuck in the ice ten miles from shore that provided frantic ship builders with just enough materials to allow them to continue at their task, the onset of historic rainfalls without which the fleet could not have been launched in time...

"The list goes on!

"Was it the work of Providence? Or something else?"

The book synopsis provides additional insight and context:

"In 1807, a young, Philadelphia woman of special gifts is accused by the religious authorities of practicing the black arts. Although the investigators can find no evidence that she has ever used her talents to harm anyone, they proceed to attempt to apprehend her to stand trial.

"She anticipates them – which is her way – and flees to the frontier which, in 1807, is the sleepy fishing village of Erie, Pennsylvania.

"It is now five years later. 1812. The sleepy fishing village of 400 souls finds itself on the front lines of a war against the British Empire. Among them walks a young woman of special gifts. The Brits have no idea what they are up against!"
